Our Students

We work with a diverse community of students who are full of innate brilliance and potential. Many also face significant, systemic barriers that impact their day-to-day experience in the classroom and at home.

Our Schools

In 2020-21, we partnered with four public schools in Seattle, connecting kids to caring adults and critical community resources that help break down barriers to graduation.

Our Impact

The 2020-21 school year was full of challenges - from relying on virtual relationship building and connection to school communities for the majority of the year, to later adapting to hybrid learning environments - but Communities In Schools of Seattle continued to support our students, families and schools every step of the way. In the face of so much uncertainty and instability, the 53 students we worked most closely this year stayed engaged in their education and continued to progress toward their goals, as did our four schools.
